2017

A Year of Rebuilding

The Studio suffered a significant loss in early 2017, with the resignation and passing of the founding Executive Director, Christian Rushing. The Studio accomplished quite a bit during the initial years, under the leadership of my dear friend and fellow urban designer.

I accepted the appointment as the Executive Director on February 28, 2017, and in March, began actively reestablishing community connections and engaging opportunities where necessary. I began meeting with the community at large, hosting meetings with several organizations, city officials, administrators, and developers. Several key opportunities were prevalent in these conversations, which represent a foundation for the Studio's immediate work plan .

First, it became apparent that we need a new study to guide the short term decisions and long-term redevelopment and revitalization of Chattanooga's South Broad District.

Second, it is critically important that we study the urban structure of Chattanooga's existing historic neighborhoods and residential forms, to guide homeowners, builders, and design professionals to appropriate infill design decisions and remodeling care. We need a toolkit to help preserve the unique character of the city's neighborhoods, streets, and homes.

And last but not least, we need to begin the conversation and educate the public about Urban Design.

2017 Summary

The Chattanooga Design Studio initiated four large robust and ambitious programs during the course of 2017. The work plan included responsive programs and consultancy type projects that squarely aim to serve as an urban design resource for the community at large. In addition, we continued to operate a robust year-round internship program, with over eight students working on-site. The primary program highlights for 2017 are:

- Chattanooga Neighborhood e-Pattern Guide
- South Broad District Study
- Rob Taylor Lecture Series
- Film Friday

Thank You,

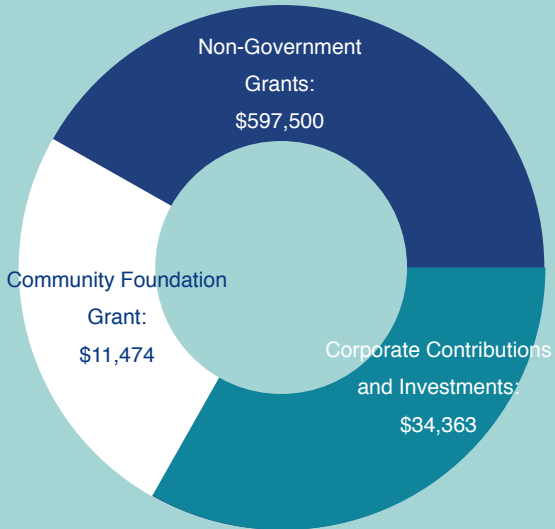

Eric Myers

Financial Highlights

The organization was able to secure a significant amount of additional funding in the 2017 fiscal year. The Board of Directors approved original discretionary spending in the 2017 budget of $60,000. All of the discretionary budget for 2017 was allocated for $5,500 in capital improvements and $54,500 to the South Broad District Study.

The 2017 Budget forecast was updated and approved by the Board of Directors in June to reflect the following major adjustments:

- Added Lyndhurst grant commitment and related spending for e-Pattern Book;
- Added Intern spending for July and August based on plan;
- Added South Broad District Study program spending.

With the above changes to end the year the Studio has $84,512 excess revenues over expenses and $108,576 in cash. Both include remaining program expenses that carry over from 2017, which compare favorably to the original target. Detailed financial statements are available upon request.

- 2017 Budget Revenues: $439,300
- 2017 Actual Revenues: $643,337
- 2017 Budget Expenditures: $424,801

- Cash on Hand at Year End: $108,576

“Design is the language that the community speaks... how we design our city, in particular the public realm, is our declaration to the world about how we see ourselves and how we see the world.”

Christian Sinclair Rushing

The mission of the Chattanooga Design Studio is to enhance Chattanooga’s quality of life by educating the community about, advocating for and facilitating excellent urban design.

Chattanooga will be internationally recognized and celebrated as an outstanding example of collaborative and effective urban design.

Organizaton:

In 2017, the Chattanooga Design Studio saw a 100% staff turnover. In January, the Studio faced the resignation and subsequent passing of the founding Executive Director, Christian Rushing. The Executive committee acted swiftly to fill this position and appointed Eric Myers, who sold a private architecture practice and reduced his time commitment to after business hours consultation for the former firm.

By the second quarter, the Urban Designer, Ryan Sandwick and Design Director, Roy Wroth. Myers replaced these positions and adjusted the staff composition slightly to three full-time and one part-time positions. The current staff is as follows:

- Executive Director- Eric Myers
- Urban Design Coordinator- Lindsey Willke
- Urban Designer- Sally Morrow
- Community Outreach Coordinator- Teresa Cole

Board of Directors:

In 2017, the Chattanooga Design Studio had transitions at the Board of Directors level of the organization, with a focus upon diversity and inclusivity. In July the Executive Director conducted a board assessment in order to identify opportunities to diversify and/or expand the board. At the September meeting the Board of Directors elected a small governance committee in order to identify and interview potential candidates.

At the December meeting, the Board of Directors appointed new members, Charita Allen and Dakasha Winton. Charita is the Deputy Administrator of the City of Chattanooga’s Economic Development Office. Dakasha is the Senior Vice President and Chief Government Relations Officer for BlueCross BlueShield of Tennessee. Additionally, the board chair Ethan Collier and the Executive Director have been preparing a strategy to add additional members in 2018.

The 2017 Board:

- Ethan Collier - Chair
- Jeff Pfitzer- immediate past Chair
- Macon Toledano - vice Chair
- Kelly Fitzgerald - Secretary
- Eric Myers - President
- Lisa Pinckney
- Stacy Richardson
- Charita Allen
- Kim White

Operations:

The Studio's primary programs have facilitated education and direct engagement of urban design within the community. In addition, the Studio has consulted and engaged community efforts in a very wide range of capacities.

One of the primary roles of the studio is to serve as a resource for the community. In that capacity, the new Studio staff has continued to participate in downtown planning and design efforts, consult with private sector developers, work with city staff, and engage the local professional design community. The Studio will seek opportunities to engage in relationships that advance or advocate for quality urban design wherever possible.

The following is a list of projects where the studio served as an urban design resource or consultancy:

- Participation in the City of Chattanooga's Miller Park redesign
- Participation in the Innovation District Space Utilization and Land Use Study
- Participation in the City of Chattanooga's Walnut St Bridge lighting
- Property evaluation for housing projects in the South Broad District
- Design investigation for the 11th Street Plaza near Warehouse Row
- Collaboration with the consultant team on First Street Steps
- Collaboration with the City of Chattanooga's MLK Extension @ Riverfront
- Collaboration with the City of Chattanooga's Choo-Choo Bluebird Row / Passenger Street Extension
- Collaboration with the City of Chattanooga's Patten Parkway redesign

Chattanooga Neighborhood e-Pattern Guide

Chattanooga's urban neighborhoods are poised for tremendous growth in the coming decades. Some neighborhoods have already experienced the pressures of new infill patterns. Neglected or challenging lots are being improved and developed. The most pressing concern for Chattanooga's urban neighborhoods is the manner in which existing lots are restored / adapted and where new homes are created in a compatible, neighborly pattern. There exists a community need for a resource which will help guide informed design and site planning decision making for renovations and new home construction.

In June 2017, the Studio engaged Urban Design Associates, LTD, from Pittsburgh, PA, and W.M. Whitaker and Associates, from Chattanooga TN to create a digital e-pattern book which can be a toolkit for compatible urban neighborhood development that can be distributed by the Chattanooga Design Studio and its partners in this effort. The studio engaged Neathawk Dubuque & Packett (NDP Agency) to coordinate the information which is placed on-line so that specific content can be adapted and added over time. The studio held workshops and one-on-one builder meetings that will introduce the pattern guide and set the framework for a larger discussion about compatibility and neighborhood infill character. Additionally the Studio helped further two housing types from the Missing Middle housing study. These units along with plans that are being developed for CNE are to be included in the plan book. These homes will be named for streets within the urban neighborhoods.

The e-Pattern Guide (mychatthouse.com) will be live in March 2018. The content will be arranged into four sets of content: My Neighborhood, My Street, My House, and My Yard. The studio will continue to promote this toolkit during 2018, and look for further ways to develop the on-line house plan profile.

The South Broad District Plan included a process to establish a community led vision. The outcome includes a report with a framework and illustrative plan which will help to guide the district's future aspirations.

South Broad District Plan

In 2017, The Chattanooga Design Studio led the urban design and planning efforts for the following program which began in late June. The Studio engaged Common Ground, from Franklin, TN, and Noell Consulting from Atlanta, GA to help lead the urban design and economic study.

This South Broad District is over 400 acres just south of Downtown Chattanooga. The study area included the U.S. Pipe and Wheland Foundry site, S. Broad Street, Southside Gardens, Market Street, and the area around Howard School. The purpose of the study was to develop a realistic, long term vision for the revitalization of the district. This vision was developed through a public-participatory planning process that involved hundreds of people during the summer and fall of 2017.

The Studio led a Charette format of public engagement for this process. The purpose of the Charette format was to guide citizens and stakeholders through their inclusion in the planning process. The format was designed to encourage community participation in a series of interactive meetings over a short period of time to craft and confirm a vision for the project. The report, completed in February 2018, is now in the adoption process which is being led by City of Chattanooga. The Studio will display the completed work to serve as a backdrop for the varying ongoing implementation discussions.

Rob Taylor Lecture Series

In late 2017, the Studio began a quarterly event in Chattanooga which will host recognized scholars and practitioners who address topics related to urbanism. Selection of the speakers is guided by relevance to the four themes from the 2005 Downtown Plan:

- Transportation Systems
- Public Space Systems
- Building Systems
- And Natural Systems

The Studio engaged a 12 member volunteer committee to help select high-quality speakers to address these topics. The Studio began to create, promote, and host the series with the first lecture on November 16, 2017. The initial event was a free lecture by Jarrett Walker of Jarrett Walker and Associates. The lecture, called “Transit Truths”, was held in partnership with the Chattanooga Area Regional Transportation Authority (CARTA) and Chattanooga Department of Transportation (CDOT). The event was held at the Bessie Smith Cultural Center’s Performance Hall, and attendance for this event was over 85 people.

Jarrett Walker’s lecture was recorded in full and a two minute summary video was produced for use in promoting the lecture series. The studio created graphics which helped promote the event on social media and posters widely displayed within downtown and its urban neighborhoods.

This program is made possible through a grant from the Lyndhurst Foundation and the Community Foundation of Greater Chattanooga.

Friday Film Series

Throughout 2017 the studio held monthly lunchtime movie screenings followed by discussion. We call this our Friday Film Series, or Film Friday. The series is intended for design professionals and amateurs alike. The events are fairly intimate in nature to facilitate open dialogue and relationship building, but are intended to welcome those new to the space of urban design.

In April the studio migrated away from iconic architecture and toward more stories of the city. The PBS series One Day in the American City is a collection of three films told by thousands of filmmakers exploring a wide range of topics. We hope to inspire future and current leaders that the American City as well as our city hold opportunity for fresh thinking and strong collaborative leadership. The following is a list of films that were screened and discussed at the studio.

March 17th - 'The Guggenheim Museum of Bilbao'

April 21th - 'One Day in The American City: The Love of the City'

May 19th - 'The Cerebral City'

'One Day In The American City' series:

June 16th - 'The Struggles of Our Cities'

Internship Program

The studio has a time honored tradition of hosting students from regional universities to learn from and inform Chattanooga as a laboratory of urban design. In 2017 the studio hosted a variety of interns from traditional planning and urban design fields as well as local graphic design and art students.

In summer 2017 the studio internships focused on comprehensive data gathering in major components of the public realm. This led to a deeper dissection of the analysis followed by public input.

This work will continue the urban design analysis components of CityScapes: Part 1 (2016). The studio internship program hosted workshops each Friday with invited guests ranging from city representatives to professionals in the design and development community.

Working as an intern for the Chattanooga Design Studio has been invaluable in creating a foundation for a career in urban planning and design. This experience has given me the opportunity to not only craft my technical skills through various ArcGIS mapping projects, but has also exposed me to effective methods of community engagement and facilitation of a respectful, collaborative planning process among many different stakeholders with various priorities.

Through the wide-range of projects in which I took part, I met and worked with a number of community partners outside of the studio which expanded both my professional network and knowledge of relevant projects. Aside from working with the Design Studio's inspiring team, one of my favorite benefits of this internship is the access to the Studio's events and programming - specifically the Film Friday monthly video + discussion and the quarterly speaker series.

The studio overall has given me a well-rounded understanding of urban design principles in the development of meaningful spaces that I will no doubt rely on through the rest of my professional life.

PROGRAM ACHIEVEMENTS:

During the Spring:

Clayton Welch, a graphic design intern began mapping and illustrating Chattanooga's landmarks and terminating vistas in a graphic design project. This effort will continue to inform the CityScapes Program.

During the summer, the internship program continued the CityScapes Program by studying the following public realm identities:

Building Types: structure typologies by locations and their placemaking identities;

Cultural Atlas: distinct layers of cultural identity, history and character;

Infill: opportunities for strategic infill, testing the Form Based Code;

Streetscapes: a "block by block" study of the physical space, form and configurations of streets.

In the Fall, Layla Rapp investigated graphic design identity for several of the studio's current programs. This included templates for social media content and posters. Her work is now in large part the identity for Film Friday and Rob Taylor Lecture programs.

Tru Taylor studied GIS mapping of Chattanooga private development in order to locate areas of significant investments. She also created a map for all recent planning efforts in the downtown.
